Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 23-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The "humitant" and amounts of its employment lack support in applicants' originally filed supporting disclosure.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 8-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Applicants' claims are confusing as to intent because it can not be determined whether the component defined by the language "in an effective amount up to" is a required component. "In an amount up to" means the component is optional while the language "effective amount" implies a presence. However, due to the contradictory nature of the instant recitation, "in an effective amount up to", determination of the metes and bounds of applicants' claims is confusing. The term "present" should be inserted before "in an effective amount up to" in all instances to clearly make evident that the component is not intended to be optional.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 8-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Swarup et al.(6,087,444).

Swarup et al. discloses preparations of coating compositions prepared from aqueous polyurethane dispersion along with other resins, including acrylic resins, siloxane surfactants as required by the claims, and polypropylene glycol added in amounts that read on applicants' claims (see column 2 line 20-column 10 line 66, and column 11 line 5 – column 13 line 29, as well as, the entire document).

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 8-48 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-49 of U.S. Patent No. 6,713,522.

Art Unit: 1711

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims of 6,713,522 are directed towards combinations of materials inclusive of those claimed in the making of peelable coatings including aqueous polyurethane dispersion resins as claimed. The claims of 6,713,522 differ from the instant claims in that overlap in selection and requirement for each individual additive component and their respective amounts are not complete. However, the claims of 6,713,522 provides for selection of these materials within its disclosure. Accordingly, it would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art to have operated within the selection of additive materials provided for within the disclosure of the claims of 6,713,522 for the purpose of obtaining acceptable product formation in practice of the invention of 6,713,522 in order to arrive at the products of applicants' claims with the expectation of success in the absence of a showing of new or unexpected results.

Claims 8-48 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-29 of U.S. Patent No. 6,822,012. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims of 6,822,012 are directed towards combinations of materials inclusive of those claimed in the making of peelable coatings including aqueous polyurethane dispersion resins as claimed. The claims of 6,822,012 differ from the instant claims in that overlap in selection and requirement for each individual additive component and their respective amounts are not complete. However, the claims of 6,822,012 provides for selection of these materials within its disclosure. Accordingly, it would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art to have operated within the selection of additive materials provided for within the disclosure of the claims of 6,822,012 for the purpose of obtaining acceptable product formation in practice of the invention of 6,822,012 in order to arrive at the products of applicants' claims with the expectation of success in the absence of a showing of new or unexpected results.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Nickolaus et al., Krepski et al.('948), Krepski et al.('851), & Lubnin et al. are all cited for their disclosures of relevant preparations from aqueous dispersions and/or additives used therein.
